Danielle's tribute was written by her friends and family.

"Life is going to do what life does. It's going to rise. It's going to fall. It's going to be beautiful. It's going to be tragic. It's going to be mundane. It's going to be chaotic. It's going to be full of joy and it's going to be full of grief.

Time is going to do what time does. It's going to move slowly. It's going to move at lightning speed. There will be moments where you feel like you have too much time on your hands and there will be other moments where you don't have nearly enough.

People are going to do what people do. They're going to breathe life into you. They're going to knock the wind out of you. They're going to disappoint. They're going to excite. They're going to surprise you—in the best ways and in the worst.

But God is also going to do what God does. He's going to guide. He's going to comfort. He's going to direct. He's going to lead. He's going to sustain. He's going to forgive. He's going to heal. And he's going to love."

“ Hey Dee. I think about you a lot. This morning I was driving to work... just watching the lines on the road pass me by. Made me think of how many days passed that I missed with you. But grateful for the ones I did get. Still hear your laugh. One of one. I love you

“ Words can't explain how hard this is. My heart goes out to the ones at her side for the last 10 years. I haven't been able to see her in 8. If there was anyone that could make me smile and catch my heart over and over it was you Baby D. You had a power that no one could understand but wanted to be a part of. I did. Thank you for so many things you brought to my life. My kids life. You made huge memories with us. You will forever be with us. To the family that she made hers, wow.. how blessed y'all are.
