Years ago we were the best of friends. Had our share of laughter and tears. And somewhere along the way Mr. Sosa scolded us about our diggities! Not sure what he was talking about but that was a scolding for the decades. The last time she came to my home we laughed about that instance. And then she saw that I still had a gift that she had given to my parents...Well of course I still had it. May Sylvia, my dear friend, rest in peace .
